The national debt was reduced nearly seventeen million dollars in October.

The Manitoba company has begun the erection of new car shops at Grand Forks.

The interstate commissioners has notified the N. P. railroad not to make any more special rates to land seekers and emigrants.

Mayor Roche, of Chicago, says that he does not anticipate any serious trouble on the day of execution of the condemned anarchists.

The reported resignation of Secretary Whitney has been denied by the secretary himself. A Democrat never resigns. The only way to get him out of office is to kick him out.

About 200 iron workers employed in the Manitoba shops at St. Paul, were discharged Tuesday, the reason being that, the extension of that road into Montana having been completed, they are not needed.

The Fargo board of trade has declared against local option and prohibition and in favor of high license. Dakota should follow Minnesota's lead and settle the question in the legislature, thereby taking the temperance question out of local politics.

On the second page will be found an illustrated article relating to the seven condemned anarchists, with the opinions of the supreme court, and various other interesting matter in connection with the case.

It has been discovered that the life preservers on the ill-fated passenger steamer Vernon were filled with grass instead of cork. There ought to be a law under which the severest possible punishment could be meted out to manufacturers of such worthless goods. They are indirectly guilty of murder.

A Kansas lady now visiting in Iowa in speaking of women voting in that state says that social questions entered largely into their vote. For instance, in her own town, because it was known that the wife of the candidate for mayor did not allow the domestic to eat at the table with the family, he was overwhelmingly defeated.

Senator Frye, of Maine, in an interview in New York the other day, says: "I have not the slightest doubt that Cleveland will get the Democratic nomination for the presidency. A president who can violate every public utterance he ever made touching civil service reform persistently and continuously, and at the same time satisfy the 'mugwumps' that they did entirely right in voting for him on that issue, is clearly entitled to the Democratic nomination."

The senator certainly puts the matter in the right light, for if there is one thing more than another that the average Democrat likes, it is a man who can break his promises as easily as he makes them. They think it is all right to promise reform in order to get office, but once there, they run the thing in their own interest without any regard for promises made. Actual, practical reform the average Democrat has no time for.

THE AMERICAN MAGAZINE FOR NOVEMBER.

We have received the November number of the American Magazine, and find it one of unusual interest, containing, as it does, articles of great interest and lasting value, by some of our most prominent and talented American literary lights. Among the articles deserving special mention we find one entitled "Mount Tacoma," by Dr. Q. D. Richardson, in which he describes an ascent to the highest attainable point on the north side of the mountain. A view of Hendrickson's Falls—an illustration of Tacoma scenery—forms the frontispiece of the number. We also find a description of the Grand Army of the Republic, by the late Commander-in-Chief, Gen. Lucius Fairchild, who gives a clear and concise account of the organization from its birth to its present time. An article by Abby Sage Richardson, telling why our continent came to be called America rather than Columbia, in very interesting and instructive and deserving special mention. The book reviews are by Julian Hawthorne. The principal poem of the number is "The Enterprise and Boxer," by Henry Abby, a stirring epic descriptive of a naval battle that took place off Portland Harbor during the war of 1812.

The recent scenes at the Fargo land office promise shortly to be duplicated at the land office at St. Cloud. It is said that Register P. B. Gorman and Receiver C. F. Macdonald are scouring Stearns county to its utmost confines to find a sufficient number of able bodied clerks to hold down the land office when the grand rush of the squatters commences November 7th.—Star-News.

How It Works.

Freight rates over the Northern Pacific, between St. Paul and Fort Benton are $3 per hundred. The Manitoba announces a rate of $2 between the same points. The entrance of the Hill rule into competition with the Pacific lines has so alarmed the latter that Vice-president Potter has visited St. Paul, and endeavored to induce the Manitoba management to change their intentions.—Grand Forks Herald.

OUR FAMILY PHYSICIAN.

Is the title of a new book given to all the subscribers of the Minneapolis Weekly Tribune, old as well as new. This book contains 480 pages, is 8 1/2 inches long, 6 inches wide and two inches thick. It is printed on extra heavy paper, and is handsomely bound with embossed covers and gilt lettered back. This retail for $3.00. Any one sending $1.75 will receive this book and the Weekly for one year. This is the best premium offered by any paper in the United States. Send for premium list.

A special from the village of Millgrove says that John Snyder, the man who walks because he can't stop, after an incessant tramp night and day for nearly three years is dying. He has aged wonderfully in the last six months, and although he still goes on walking in a well beaten path about his house, it is with tottering steps and a face which gives evidence of great suffering. It is believed he is near the end of his journey. His strange affliction, which no physician has yet been able to understand, has proved to be both a blessing and a curse to him and his family. Prior to it there was a constant struggle to keep the wolf from the door, but since along with the train of his sorrows and woes, it has brought him fame and fortune, and he is now said to be well off.

THOSE DIAMONDS.

When the Alvin Joslyn Comedy company appeared in Brainerd the people were treated to the sight of some rare diamonds which belonged to Chas. L. Davis, in fact the actor traveled in diamonds, instead of in a check, and the value of the treasures was placed up in the thousands. The Helena (Montana) Independent thus gives away the pasty character of these Kohinoors:

"Subject to the cruel grasp of a Butte assessor, the Alvin Joslyn diamonds acted almost like Dead Sea animals—creaked to ashes in his hand. Mr. Davis, with a gift of lying that accounts for so successful, advertised and exhibited them as being worth a cool $100,000. His strikers would sit around by the hour and tell of the wonderful values and eventful history and the sayings and doings of Mr. Davis is connected therewith. In Butte they were seized for taxes and 'Oh, what a fall was there, my countrymen!' Under the eye of an expert the diamonds were pronounced of color and full of flaws and destined to the insignificant value of $1,200. In other words for jewels of such size the valuation relates to paste stones. Upon this Davis paid taxes and went on his way. It will now be interesting to watch whether in advertising the gems in future he will explain the episode in Butte, by saying the Butte expert did not know what he was talking about."

MURDER NEAR PERHAM.

The Fergus Falls Journal gives the following account of the crime: Last Saturday evening a dance was given at the residence of Peter Walters, about two miles from the village of Henning. There was a large attendance, and the couples were called to the floor by a band which they had purchased previously, a certain number of couples being allowed on the floor at a time. J. M. Gates and his younger brother were present, as were the two Lucy brothers, Dan and Gene and their cousin Tim Lucy. Young Gates had No. 12, and Gene Lucy claimed to have purchased the same number. There had been some beer drunk before this, and the young men promptly got into a dispute over the matter. Walters told them if they were going to have a fight they must go out of doors. James Gates took the part of his brother in the matter, and Lucy turned his attention to him, going outside and daring him to come out. Gates, who is reputed to be a "good man" went out, but said there was no reason for fighting, and the matter, after some further talk, was supposed to be settled. As Gates turned to go back into the house, "Gene Lucy said: 'But you can't bluff me out at all.' 'Neither can you bluff me,' returned Gates, 'but I don't see why we should fight.' Lucy then aimed a blow at Gates, which was hardly off easily, saying Lucy was hardly the man he thought himself to be. Lucy struck him again and again, and finally Gates knocked him down and got on top of him. At this juncture Dan Lucy said to those standing about something about parting them and went to the two men, and was followed by his cousin, Tim Lucy. Then Gates was observed to throw up his hands and fall back, when 'Gene Lucy came to the top and began hammering him, till Tim pulled him off, and it was then found that he had been pounding a dead man. Gates had been struck on both sides of the head, just back of the ears, with a slung shot it is supposed, and had died instantly. The Lucys soon afterward left the place going toward home, where they were afterward found and arrested, Tim telling the constable that he supposed he was the one who had hit Gates. All three were brought to the city by Constable Andrew Weaver and R. W. Baffum, the Henning wheat buyer, Sunday morning and looked up in the county jail.

An East Towas, Mich., man recently interviewed a clairvoyant, who told him where to bore for gas and be sure to find it. She described his farm accurately, told him to take not more than five people, and to stop boring as soon as gas was struck, as below it was an immense field of salt. She also told him where to find an abundance of iron on his farm. Although he did not tell the woman his name, nor his place of residence, he has found samples of his soil that bear 87 per cent. iron and is endeavoring with five people he had better let into his gas snap.

Lively Times at St. Cloud.

The city council Monday night had a lively session over the electric light companies, one with poles on the ground ready for the council to locate them, the second with poles ordered, and the third asking for a franchise. There were accusations of bribery and epithets flew thick and fast and even personal violence was resorted to. It was decided to use one set of poles and in the meanwhile the Gas and Light company has secured the bulk of the patronage.

AN INDIAN IDEA OF GREATNESS.

Every year during the autumn month a huge "sweat"-house was erected, and the inhabitants of all the surrounding Indian villages were invited to attend. Every crevice in the covering of this sweltering hole which would permit the entrance of a breath of air was carefully closed, and after a sumptuous feast, consisting of acorn soup and venison, the bucks, with a crack in their head, would crawl into this stifling hole, in the center of which burned a hot fire. Around the blaze the naked savages danced weirdly until the heat became so intense that each one, sooner or later, fell to the ground, exhausted. Then came the test of endurance which was to develop the greatest man of the party. The victor was the one who could boil the longest and live. They would form into two sections and arrange themselves at full length, face downward, on either side of the fire, with their noses rooted to the ground. Occasionally a staid old buck would stand erect and with his blanket fan the flame over in the direction of the opposite party. Then he would subside and undergo similar treatment until the heat became unendurable even to an Indian, and they would crawl out one by one more dead than alive, break the ice in an adjacent creek and plunge in. The last one to emerge from this veritable furnace was invariably Capt. Jack, and he was crowned and crowned again with all the honors that his Indian subjects could bestow.—San Francisco Call.

From Little Falls.

N. P. Clarke has sub-let all his lumbering in this vicinity for the coming winter, and will not have any crews of his own at work. Gray & Libby have a three year's contract on the Platte, to cut and drive 8,000,000 each year. Nearly the usual amount will be cut by Clarke in this locality this winter, and contractors will work on the Mississippi, the Nokasippi, Crow Wing, Daggett and other small streams. Fred Clarke, his nephew, who has charge of his extensive lumber interests at Minneapolis, is handling the business with ability and success.

Miss Mary Sylvester, the young lady who was so terribly injured in escaping from the brutal attack of Lou Murray in Minneapolis nearly three months ago, arrived in Little Falls on Tuesday evening of this week, accompanied by her sister Flora. She is stopping with Mr. and Mrs. John Hamilton, who are old friends of the family. Miss Mary's many friends in this village will be pleased to learn that she is gradually recovering from her injuries. She is still obliged to have the assistance of crutches when walking, but it is expected that her recovery will be complete. The people of Little Falls have always held Miss Sylvester in high esteem, and heartily sympathize with her in her misfortune.

Spies, Filden and Schwab have at last asked that their sentence be commuted.

Northern Pacific Indemnity Lands.

UNITED STATES LAND OFFICE, ST. CLOUD, MINN., Oct. 29th, 1887.

To whom it may concern.

Numerous inquiries having been addressed to this office, for information relative to the revocation of the Hon. Secretary of the Interior, of the order withdrawing indemnity lands for the benefit of the Northern Pacific Railroad company, and opening the same to settlement, under the general land laws, the Register and Receiver submit the following information of those making such inquiries:

1st. The Secretary's order affects all lands within the 30 mile indemnity limits, of the Northern Pacific Railroad company, not covered by existing rights. In this connection we would state that none of the selections in these odd sections have been approved to the Railroad company.

2d. Applications to file or to make homestead entry upon such lands will be received on and after November 7th, 1887, and will be noted and held, subject to the claim of the Company, of which claim the applicant will be disinterestedly informed, and a memorandum thereof entered on his papers. The company will then be notified and allowed 30 days within which to present their objections. Should the company fail to appear, the filing or entry will be admitted; if objection is made by the company, hearing will be ordered by the Register and Receiver, to determine the right of the company to make selection. This will be decided by this office, subject to the right of appeal in either party.

3d. Settlement may date from August 15, 1887.

4th. The restored lands are not subject to cash entry.

By letter of the Hon. Commissioner of the General Land Office, of date October 25, 1887, we are advised that the Secretary of the Interior having decided that the law does not authorize a second indemnity belt, the company had no right to apply for the lands beyond the 30-mile limit—in the so-called 40-mile, or second indemnity belt.

5th. Applications may be made at this office in person, or through clerks of court, in the usual manner.

In order to save them expense, the Register and Receiver would suggest to applicants that it will not be necessary for them to employ attorneys, until they are notified that the allowance of their applications. They will then be given 30 days' notice of such action, and of hearings ordered, which time will enable them to perfect their arrangements for counsel. Upon making application, all that will be required of them is to present written applications and affidavits, which they can have prepared at very small expense.

MORTGAGE SALE.

Default having been made in the payment of the sum of nine hundred and twenty $900 dollars, ($900.00), which together with the sum paid to redeem from tax sales as hereinafter stated is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain Mortgage, duly executed and delivered by J. D. Clancy and Abbie J. Clancy his wife, to the Minnesota Loan and Trust Company, bearing date the 5th day of November, A. D. 1884, and for the County of Crow Wing and State of Minnesota on the 5th day of November, A. D. 1884, and recorded in said office in book B of Mortgages, on page 249 and 250, and the undersigned pursuant to the terms of said Mortgage, did on the 12th day of September, 1887, pay to the County Treasurer of said County to redeem said mortgage, the sum of eight hundred and 14-100 dollars, ($84.14), and holds the receipt of said Treasurer therefor, so that the whole sum due at the date of this notice under said Mortgage is $200.14.

Now therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said Mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said Mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said Mortgage, viz: Lot seven (7) in Block thirty-nine (39), in the first Addition to Brainerd, according to the plat thereof on file in the office of the Register of Deeds in and for said County, situated in Crow Wing County and State of Minnesota, with the improvements and appurtenances, which sale will be made by the Sheriff of said County, at the front door of the Court House in Brainerd, in said County and State, on the third day of December, A. D. 1887, at 10 o'clock, a. m., of that day public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest and amount paid for redemption from tax sales for taxes on said premises, with interest and fifty dollars allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

judges, and during the past three weeks Judge Grinnell has been connected with the famous trial. He has been daily deluged with missives of this kind. While the officials themselves have been able to keep their heads, the people have been made to suffer for their special interest in this case. Mrs. Grinnell, however, has been so overcome by the attention that she has been threatened, in the event of nothing being accomplished to save the milk of the dairies, to leave the country. In consequence of this, the milk of the dairies is being sold in blocks or a dozen for less than 25 cents per gallon. The milk producer gets 25 per cent of the value of the milk, but the consumer pays 65 per cent of the value of milk, but there is no way of regulating the retailer, who is the only one who can prevent the want of the roads to haul the milk for smaller rates. Benefit for Eva Masters.

There will be a social at the Baptist church Friday evening. A literary program has been prepared, also coffee and cake will be served. The proceeds will be used for the benefit of Miss Eva Masters, who is now slowly recovering from typhoid fever. All are cordially invited.

John Hughes, the proprietor of the Marshall house at Brainerd, was at the Clarendon last night. He returned home
this afternoon.—Duluth Herald.

The total fines as reported by Clerk
Mahlum reaches $500.05 for the past month. The municipal court is doing a paying business these days and no mistake.

Frank W. Earle, of Minneapolis, who is suing for a divorce from his wife, Eva
W. Earle, on the ground of infidelity, formerly lived in this city. They were married at Elk River ten years ago.

Brainerd and St. Cloud have a new dam, street cars and electric lights, and simultaneously it is developing that iron bearing rock exists in the neighborhood of each city.

Clyde Warner and E. A. Fader who were sent to Como at the time the shops were opened there have returned to Brainerd and are employed again at their old posts in the shops here. We are glad to see them back again.

E. W. Kaley, foreman of the Northern Pacific tinshop at St. Paul, arrived in Brainerd yesterday on his way to San Francisco, where he will spend the winter. In regard to the lay-off at Como
he says that the wood working machinery has been shut down entirely and that about seventy men are still employed out of 242. The paint shop will probably be closed and it is not probable that the December first will see the works closed
for the winter at least.

The annual meeting of the Ladies Aid Society was held Wednesday afternoon at Mrs. J. A. Rowell's. Financially the past year has been a very profitable one to this organization and much good has been accomplished in various ways.
The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President—Mrs. A.
E. Losey. Vice President—Mrs. Wm.
Steel. Secretary—Mrs. W. E. Campbell. Treasurer—Mrs. F. M. Cable.
Directress—Mrs. B. A. Ferris. Mrs. J. J.
Spencer, Mrs. F. L. Matteson and H. J.
McDonald.

The county commissioners are considering the advisability of buying a tract of land to be converted into a poor farm. The county now pays for the over $75 per month for the support of the poor and although the amount is comparatively small at present it is increasing each year. Whether it would pay to present to run a poor farm is a matter of considerable doubt, but if the county contemplates the purchase of land for that purpose the sooner it is done the better, on account of the rise in real estate.

The usual "permits" were collected of the frail ones Monday, the sum amounting to $351.75. It is customary in this city on the last day of each month for these women to walk up to the city clerk's office and pay their little "tax" and leave the court room without a whisper more than to acknowledge that they are either inmates or keepers and are guilty of certain licensed crime carried on in institutions of wickedness,
the monthly divide with the city being to keep them from arrest for the next thirty days. Nevertheless, Brainerd is no worse than other cities of her size all over the state.

Hallowe'en night was made hideous by the boys in this city. The fact of the matter is that the fun on occasions of this kind has degenerated to the level of malicious mischief and the perpetrators of wanton acts are luck that they are not proceeded against as in Fergus Falls, for instance, where the police managed to recognize twenty-one of the mischief makers. Harmless amusement among boys on such occasions are affected, and a boy would not be thought much of who didn't have his little joke but when it comes to overturning out-houses, breaking windows, or kindred depredations, the matter is being carried too far.

Yesterday a reporter visited the rifle range out beyond the Sanitarium to see what improvements had been made. A new pit has been constructed according to military rules and the working of the range has been so arranged that the target does not have to show his head above the ground in attending to his duties. The pit is some seven feet deep and is curbed up with ties, a six foot
bank of sand having been thrown up immediately in front of the pit. This makes it impossible for any accident to occur and as the club is being reorganized and in future will be governed by strict military rules, all danger from carelessness or oversight will be done away with. Quite a number of new members have added their names to the club list.

Love is Blind.

Frank Poole reappeared in this city
on Sunday, and though his wife had begun suit for divorce from him because of his recent escapades with the Duluth woman, he succeeded in persuading her to live with him again. Her family did everything possible to keep her away from him, but she was too much for them.
Wm. Albrecht, and Poole had a personal set-to at the N. P. depot that night.
The couple, however, took the midnight
train for Brainerd, where they will reside.—St. Cloud Journal Press.

Germania Society.

The Germans of this city have formed a society among themselves and on Sunday the election of officers occurred, which resulted as follows: President
Werner Hempstead; Vice President, J.
H. Koop; Secretary, Herman Blank;
Treasurer, H. C. Miller. A committee on yawns consisting of Messrs. Henry Theriot chairman, Frank Schmelz, Herman Fitz, John A. Dennis and H. C.
Miller was appointed and Chas. Greves, J. W. Koop and Wm. Dennis appointed to engage a suitable hall and make other necessary arrangements. It is expected that the society will occupy one of the rooms in the Sixth street school house.
The organization will represent many of the business men of the city and will grow in proportions until it becomes one of the strongest in the city.

Suffering Humanity Invited.

The Star-News, of Minneapolis, read
a lecture to Sheriff McLaren in his Tuesday lecture as follows:

Sheriff McLaren, of Brainerd, does not seem to be satisfied with the decision of Judge Sleeper to the effect that a man, who is not a citizen, cannot hold office.
Possibly McLaren has not stopped to think what the result would be in his native country if an American went there and attempted to hold office without being a citizen. It is absurd for any man to work himself into believing that a foreigner should be allowed to hold office before he has become a citizen. America extends a broad invitation to suffering humanity, but she demands in return that before a man can take part in the government of this country he must first become a citizen of her public affairs he should renounce allegiance to all foreign potentates, and take an oath of loyalty to the United States.

GOING TO GREENER FIELDS.

K. S. Paine Leaves Brainerd Between
Two Days and Fails to Return.

The rumored report of the flight of K.
S. Paine was a shock to the business community and many were loth to believe the stories given in connection with his prolonged absence. The firm of K. S.
Paine & Co., doing a wholesale and retail butcher business on Sixth street, has been succeeded by being one of the solid institutions of the city and that the head of the firm should decamp was the last thing thought of, at least by outsiders.

The news was pretty well circulated by Monday night, however, and a reporter
interviewed the remaining members, C.
H. and N. M. Paine, who corroborated
the report in almost every detail, not leaving the slightest doubt as to the fact of the flight of the missing partner.
The motive of the flight was not stated,
but it was said that the firm was in a bad way financially, and that the firm had been buying cattle at or near Glenwood, and last week Wednesday K.
S. Paine made preparations to go there,
taking some $1,500 of the money belonging to the firm. The next day after he departed certain things came to the notice of C. H. Paine arousing his suspicious which he at once communicated to his partner, but nothing was said publicly, trusting that Saturday,
the day that he was to return, would see him back and that he would make a satisfactory statement. Getting another telegram was sent to the partner that he was to deal with at Glenwood, and the answer came back that he had not been there, and this confirmed the worst fears in regard to the matter. On Wednesday a letter reached here stating that they need not expect him back as he had gone
for good and took his share of the firm capital, the letter being dated from Chicago.

A dissolution notice was published Monday evening announcing the withdrawal of K. S. Paine and also the fact that the remaining partners would carry on the business. The termination of the affair did not result in a wreck of the institution as was probably expected by the departed member, and the gentlemen who are holding their paper, which unfortunately comes due at an early date,
have signified their willingness to help them out with aid and consolation, and their financial affairs have been placed in shape to avoid any interruption of business.

Mr. Paine's domestic relations during the past six months toward his family
have been of such a nature as to elicit
remarks from people who were in a position to know how matters were being carried on by him, his wife being a most estimable lady and to her the sympathy of the community is tendered. There is no doubt but that the complications
arising from this source had much to do with his sudden departure, but for the sake of the family and friends, publicity
of the details is suppressed.

DIED.

McMULLEN.—At the residence of Mrs.
S. A. Gleason, of typhoid fever, on Wednesday, Nov. 2nd, 1887, Mr. Arthur
M. McMullen, aged 15 years, 4 months and 15 days.

The deceased had been a resident of Brainerd only about six months during which time he was in the employ of the Northern Pacific railroad as telegraph operator in the company's office in this city. Although but a boy in years, he had the intelligence and ability of a man, performing the arduous duties of his position in a satisfactory manner. He was a young man of sterling qualities and good habits, and by honesty and integrity and pleasant and genial ways
he won the admiration and esteem of all who knew him. He was taken sick with that dread disease, typhoid fever, about four weeks ago, and in spite of the best possible nursing and medical aid he gradually grew worse until death terminated his sufferings on Wednesday last.
He died surrounded by all the members of his family, they having been summoned from their home in Minneapolis.
The funeral services were conducted at the residence of Mrs. Gleason, this afternoon, the Rev. J. A. Rowell officiating.
The remains were interred in Evergreen cemetery. The deceased gentleman was the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. McMullen, of Minneapolis, and a brother of G. E.
McMullen, N. P. train dispatcher in the city. The bereaved family and parents have the sympathy of the entire community.

Y. M. C. A. Notes.

The delegates to the state convention have returned well pleased with the convention, and with many new ideas.

The meeting next Sunday will be open to all who wish to come. The subject will be "A good character and the influence of it."

The association feels very grateful to the Ladies' Auxiliary for the handsome desk which they placed in the rooms last week. This is a long-felt need as well as to the safety and convenience of those interested in this work.

Special Council Meeting.

Monday evening the city council met in special session, the object being the discussion of matters in connection with the sewers. Ald. Forsyth was elected president on account of the absence of President Taylor. The contract with Mr. Reilly called for the completion of the sewers Nov. 1st, and should the contractor fail to complete the same by that time the contract calls for a retention of $20 per day for his pay until the work is done. In consideration of the fact that the work has been retarded by various vexations the council granted thirty days longer in which to finish the job, and Mr. Reilly was given the privilege of substituting any part of the work. Alderman Gardner moved to dispute with the service of S. H. Helf which was seconded by Alderman Moran
and carried, Superintendent Smith to be retained, by a vote, to exceed $5 per day, Ald. Cullen making the motion, seconded by S. H. Gardner.

Ed. Caffrey was appointed acting chief in the absence of P. Merz.

The board of health came before the commissioners and advised immediate action
in regard to the sanitary condition of the city.

The national debt was reduced nearly seventeen million dollars in October.

The Manitoba company has begun the erection of new car shops at Grand Forks.

The interstate commissioners has notified the N. P. railroad not to make any more special rates to land seekers and emigrants.

Mayor Roche, of Chicago, says that he does not anticipate any serious trouble on the day of execution of the condemned anarchists.

The reported resignation of Secretary Whitney has been denied by the secretary himself. A Democrat never resigns. The only way to get him out of office is to kick him out.

About 200 iron workers employed in the Manitoba shops at St. Paul, were discharged Tuesday, the reason being that, the extension of that road into Montana having been completed, they are not needed.

The Fargo board of trade has declared against local option and prohibition and in favor of high license. Dakota should follow Minnesota's lead and settle the question in the legislature, thereby taking the temperance question out of local politics.

On the second page will be found an illustrated article relating to the seven condemned anarchists, with the opinions of the supreme court, and various other interesting matter in connection with the case.

It has been discovered that the life preservers on the ill-fated passenger steamer Vernon were filled with grass instead of cork. There ought to be a law under which the severest possible punishment could be meted out to manufacturers of such worthless goods. They are indirectly guilty of murder.

A Kansas lady now visiting in Iowa in speaking of women voting in that state says that social questions enter largely into their vote. For instance, in her own town, because it was known that the wife of the candidate for mayor did not allow the domestic to eat at the table with the family, he was overwhelmingly defeated.

Senator Frye, of Maine, in an interview in New York the other day, says: "I have not the slightest doubt that Cleveland will get the Democratic nomination for the presidency. A president who can violate every public utterance he ever made touching civil service reform persistently and continuously, and at the same time satisfy the 'mugwumps' that they did entirely right in voting for him on that issue, is clearly entitled to the Democratic nomination." The senator certainly puts the matter in the right light, for if there is one thing more than another that the average Democrat likes, it is a man who can break his promises as easily as he makes them. They think it is all right to promise reform in order to get office, but once there, they run the thing in their own interest without any regard for promises made. Actual, practical reform the average Democrat has no time for.

THE AMERICAN MAGAZINE FOR NOVEMBER.

We have received the November number of the American Magazine, and find it one of unusual interest, containing, as it does, articles of great interest and lasting value, by some of our most prominent and talented American literary lights. Among the articles deserving special mention we find one entitled "Mount Tacoma," by Dr. Q. D. Richardson, in which he describes an ascent to the highest attainable point on the north side of the mountain. A view of Hendrickson's Falls—an illustration of Tacoma scenery—forms the frontispiece of the number. We also find a description of the Grand Army of the Republic, by the late Commander-in-Chief, Gen. Lucius Fairchild, who gives a clear and concise account of the organization from its birth to its present time. An article by Abby Sage Richardson, telling why our continent came to be called America rather than Columbia, in very interesting and instructive and deserving special mention. The book reviews are by Julian Hawthorne. The principal poem of the number is "The Enterprise and Boxer," by Henry Abby, a stirring epic descriptive of a naval battle that took place off Portland Harbor during the war of 1812.

The recent scenes at the Fargo land office promise shortly to be duplicated at the land office at St. Cloud. It is said that Register P. B. Gorman and Receiver C. F. Macdonald are scouring Stearns county to its utmost confines to find a sufficient number of able bodied clerks to hold down the land office when the grand rush of the squatters commences November 7th.—Star-News.

ROOM 11, BANK BLOCK.

How It Works.

Freight rates over the Northern Pacific, between St. Paul and Fort Benton are $3 per hundred. The Manitoba announced a rate of $2 between the same points. The entrance of the Hill roads into competition with the Pacific lines has so alarmed the latter that Vice-president Potter has visited St. Paul, and endeavored to induce the Manitoba management to change their intentions.—Grand Forks Herald.

OUR FAMILY PHYSICIAN.

Is the title of a new book given to all the subscribers of the Minneapolis Weekly Tribune, old as well as new. This book contains 480 pages, is 8 1/2 inches long, 6 inches wide and 2 inches thick. It is printed on extra heavy paper, and is handsomely bound with embossed covers and gilt lettered back. This retails for $3.00. Any one sending $1.75 will receive this book and the Weekly for one year. This is the best premium offered by any paper in the United States. Send for premium list.

A special from the village of Millgrove says that John Snyder, the man who walks because he cannot see, is dying. He has aged wonderfully in the last six months, and although he still goes on walking in a well beaten path about his house, it is with tottering step and a face which gives evidence of great suffering. It is believed he can not possibly live many days, and he himself now thinks he is near the end of his journey. His strange affliction, which no physician has yet been able to understand, has proved to be both a blessing and a curse to him and his family. Prior to it there was a constant struggle to keep the wolf from the door, but since along with the train of his sorrows and woes, it has brought him fame and fortune, and he is now said to be well off.

THOSE DIAMONDS.

When the Alvin Joslyn Comedy company appeared in Brainerd the people were treated to the sight of some rare diamonds which belonged to Chas. L. Davis, in fact the actor traveled on his diamonds, instead of his cheek, and the value of the treasures was placed up in the thousands. The Helena (Montana) Independent thus gives away the pasty character of these Kohinoors:

"Subject to the cruel grasp of a Butte assessor, the Alvin Joslyn diamonds acted almost like Dead Sea animals—turned to ashes in his hand. Mr. Davis, with a gift of lying that accounts for so vile an actor being financially so successful, advertised and exhibited them being worth a cool $100,000. His strikers would sit around by the hour and tell of the wonderful values and eventful history and the sayings and doings of Mr. Davis is connected therewith. In Butte they were seized for taxes and what a fall was there, my countrymen! Under the eye of an expert the diamonds were pronounced of color and full of flaws and dwindled to the insignificant value of $1,200. In other words for jewels of such size and value, they were sold for a paltry sum. Upon this Davis paid taxes and went on his way. It will now be interesting to watch whether in advertising the gems in future he will explain the episode in Butte, by saying the Butte expert did not know what he was talking about."

MURDER NEAR PERHAM.

The Fergus Falls Journal gives the following account of the crime: Last Saturday evening a dance was given at the residence of Peter Walters, about two miles from the village of Henning. There was a large attendance, and the couples were called to the floor by numbers, which they had purchased previously, certain number of couples being allowed on the floor at a time. J. M. Gates and his younger brother were present, as were the two Lucy brothers, Dan, and Gene and their cousin Tim Lucy. Young Gates had No. 12, and Gene Lucy claimed to have purchased the same number. There had been some beer drunk before this, and the young men promptly got into a dispute over the matter. Walters told them if they were going to have a fight they must go out of doors. James Gates took the party outside and in the matter, and Lucy turned his attention to him, going outside and daring him to come out. Gates, who is reputed to be a "good man" went out, but said there was no reason for fighting, and the matter, after some further talk, was supposed to be settled. As Gates turned to go back into the house Gene Lucy said: "But you can't bluff me out at all." "Neither can you bluff me," returned Gates, "but I don't see why we should fight." Lucy then was warned off easily, saying Lucy was hardly the man he thought himself to be. Lucy struck at him again and again, and finally Gates knocked him down and got on top of him. At the time Dan Lucy said to Walters, "I am going to kill him about putting them and went to the two men, and was followed by his cousin, Tim Lucy. Just then Gates was observed to throw up his hands and fall back, when Gene Lucy came to the top and commenced hitting him, and Tim pulled him off. It was then found that he had been pounding a dead man. Gates had been struck on both sides of the head, just back of the ears, with a slung shot it is supposed, and had died instantly. The Lucy sons then afterward left the place going toward home, where they were afterward found and arrested. Tim telling the constable that he supposed he was the one who had hit Gates. All three were brought to the city by constable Andrew Sawyer and H. W. Buffum, the Henning wheat buyer, Sunday morning and looked up in the county jail.

An East Towas, Mich., man recently interviewed a clairvoyant, who told him where to bore for gas and be sure to find it. She described his farm accurately, told him to take not more than five people, and to stop boring as soon as gas was struck, as below it was an immense field of salt. She also told him where to find an abundance of iron on his farm. Although he did not tell the woman his name, nor his place of residence, he has found samples of his soil that bear 87 per cent. iron and is wondering what five people he had better let into his gas snap.

Lively Times at St. Cloud.

The city council Monday night had a lively session over the electric light companies, one with poles on the ground ready for the council to locate them, the second with poles ordered, and the third asking for franchises. There were accusations of bribery and epithets flew thick and fast and even personal violence was resorted to. It was decided to use one set of poles and in the meanwhile the Gas and Light company has secured the bulk of the patronage.

AN INDIAN IDEA OF GREATNESS.

Every year during the autumn month a huge "sweat"-house was erected, and the inhabitants of all the surrounding Indian villages were invited to attend. Every creature in the covering of this sweltering hole which would permit the entrance of a breath of air was carefully closed, and after a sumptuous feast, consisting of acorn soup and venison, the bucks, with Jack at their head, would crawl into the stifling hole, in the center of which burned a hot fire. Around the blaze the naked savages danced weirdly until the heat became so intense that each one, sooner or later, fell to the ground, exhausted. Then came the test of endurance, which was to develop the greatest man of the party. The victor was the one who could boil the longest and live. They would form into two sections and arrange themselves at full length, face downward, on either side of the fire, with their noses rooted to the ground. Occasionally a stalwart buck would stand erect and with his blanket fan the flame over in the direction of the opposite party. Then he would subside and undergo similar treatment until the heat became unendurable even to an Indian, and they would crawl out one by one more dead than alive, break the ice in an adjacent creek and plunge in. The last one to emerge from this veritable furnace was invariably Capt. Jack, and he was crowned and crowned again with all the honors that his Indian subjects could bestow.—San Francisco Call.

From Little Falls.

N. P. Clarke has sub-let all his lumbering in this vicinity for the coming winter, and will not have any crew of his own at work. Gray & Libby have a three year's contract on the Piatte, to cut and drive 5,000,000 feet of lumber for the country of Crow and Big Horn. The usual amount will be cut by Clarke in this locality this winter, and contractors will work on the Mississippi, the Missouri, Crow, Wind, Dugout and other small streams. Fred Clarke, his nephew, who has charge of his extensive lumbering interests at Minneapolis, is handling the business with ability and success.

Miss Mary Sylvester, the young lady who was so terribly injured in escaping from the brutal attack of Lou Murray in Minneapolis nearly three months ago, arrived in Little Falls on Tuesday evening of this week, accompanied by her sister Elvira. She is stopping with Mr. and Mrs. John Hamlin, who are old friends of the family. Miss Mary's many friends in this village will be pleased to learn that she is gradually recovering from her injuries. She is still obliged to have the assistance of crutches in walking, but it is expected that her recovery will be complete. The people of Little Falls have always held Miss Sylvester in high esteem, and heartily sympathize with her in her misfortune.

Spies, Filden and Schwab have at last asked that their sentence be commuted.

Northern Pacific Indemnity Lands. URGENT SPECIAL LEXIS OFFICE, ST. CLOUD, MINN., Oct. 29th, 1887.

To whom it may concern.

Numerous inquiries having been addressed to this office, for information relative to the revocation, by the Hon. Secretary of the Interior, of the order withdrawing indemnity lands for the benefit of the Northern Pacific Railroad company, and opening the same to settlement under the general land laws, the Register and Receiver submit the following for the information of those making such inquiries:

1st. The Secretary's order affects all lands within the 10 mile limit of indemnity limits, of the Northern Pacific Railroad company, not covered by existing entries. In this connection we would state that none of the selections in these old sections have been approved to the Railroad company.

2d. Applications to file or to make homestead entry upon such lands will be received on and after November 7th, 1887, and will be noted and held, subject to the claim of the Company, of which claim the applicant will be distinctly informed, and a memorandum thereof entered on his papers. The company will then be notified and allowed days within which the present holders of the lands may file their objections. Should the company fail to appear, the filing or entry will be admitted. If objection is made by the company, a hearing will be ordered by the Register and Receiver, to determine the right of the company to make selection of the same. This will be decided by this office, subject to the right of appeal in either party.

3d. Settlement may date from August 15, 1887.

4th. The restored lands are not subject to cash entry.

5th. By letter of the Hon. Commissioner of the General Land Office, of the 10th inst., it is advised that "the Secretary of the Interior having decided that the law does not authorize a second indemnity belt, the company had no right to apply for the lands beyond the 30-mile limits—in the so-called 40-mile, or second indemnity belt."

6th. Applications may be made at this office in person, or through clerks of court, in the usual manner.

7th. In order to save them expense, the Register and Receiver would suggest to applicants that it will not be necessary for them to employ attorneys, until such time as they are notified that the company objects to the allowance of their applications. They will then be given 30 days' notice of such action, and of hearings, ordered, which time will enable them to perfect their arrangements for counsel. Upon making application, all that will be required of them is to present written applications and affidavits, which they can have prepared at very small expense.

MORAL AND RELIGIOUS.

The thorough interweaving of the roots of Christianity with the history of the world on which has sprung, is at once the source of its power and an assurance of its divineness.—James Martineau.

Many people spend their time trying to find the hole where sin got into the world. If two men break through the ice into the mill-pond, they had better hunt for some hole to get out, rather than go into a long argument about the hole they came to fall in.

Mr. D. L. Moody has arranged to have Ying Lee, proprietor of a Chinese laundry at Hartford, Conn., enter his Mount Hermon School at Northfield, Mass., to prepare himself for the ministry. He is called a "relick" in the language of the great mass of his race.

Learn, O student, the true wisdom. See your bush aflame with roses, like the burning bush of Moses. Listen, and then thou shalt hear, if thy soul be not dead, how from out it, soft and clear, speaks to thee the Lord Almighty.—Persian (Haifa), Conway.

Prof. F. A. Byss, says the Richmond Religious Herald, has a little boy of four years named Harry. He is very pretty (takes after his mother).

One day Harry was scribbling away (going through the forms of letter writing), and when asked what he was doing, he said: "I am doing what is all the time doing. I'm writing to the brethren about the money."

Of pulp exchange the Independent says: "A few pastors exchange too often and suffer criticism touching their industry in preparing for the pulpit; but most pastors exchange too seldom. A more frequent and broader system of exchange among pastors of the same city or even neighboring cities and towns would tend to enlarge and make more uniform the views of the churches. It would also do much to take both churches and people out of ruts of thought. No man is so self-sufficient in his own mind and habit of thought as to cover the whole field of teaching or method."

The Sabbath is sacred to rest. Weary humanity must have repose. Fortunately bodily rest does not conflict with intellectual and moral improvement, but is necessary to it. The Sabbath does not restrict us to some thoughts and feelings, but should be devoted to the whole duty into relations we sustain to our Creator, to our fellow-men, the obligations that grow out of these relations, the duty to discharge them with a cheerful, edifying social intercourse. So long as weighty problems of human life demand solution, so long as vital interests are at stake, so long as we cannot afford to let Sabbath hours pass unimproved.

The Baptist Weekly says: "Soon after Dr. Archibald Alexander moved to Princeton, and while he was yet a stranger in that region, he went out one Sabbath afternoon to preach in a schoolhouse where the theological student should be devoted to his study."

He preached on his cubic crystal sermons—giving the result of years of thought and study in his inimitably simple style. And one of the boys said: "I like that old man. He is not learned like those seminary fellows who generally preach here, but could understand every word that he said."

Not long ago the writer asked a class of small boys in Sunday school what their idea of heaven is. It was curious to note how their replies were influenced by their own circumstances.

A request for a Faneuil Hall, it has been born and brought up in a quiet city street, said it was "all grass and green trees," one from the richer class said: "I like that old man. He is not learned like those seminary fellows who generally preach here, but could understand every word that he said."

MY BOY STILL.

Do you think I've forgotten the day when he was in my arms? Many fair children I've loved since then, but I think I have loved him best. For he was the first, and I have not the heart to love him less; whatever may come, he's my boy still.

I remember when he was a little lad, how he used to climb on my knee, how proud we were of his beauty, how he had courage and love and truth, and how he had wandered far away, how he had come back to me, how he is sure to come back to his mother; He's my boy still.

He was just like sunshine about the house, in the days of his happy youth; You know we said with him, he had courage and love and truth, and how he had wandered far away, how he had come back to me, how he is sure to come back to his mother; He's my boy still.

I know there was never a kinder heart, and I can remember to that day, when he was in my arms, how he had wandered far away, how he had come back to me, how he is sure to come back to his mother; He's my boy still.

A mother can feel where she can't see. He is a wise and loving boy, my boy was trained in the good old way, shall certainly get my wage, and though he is far away, and followed his wayward will, I know whatever, wherever he is, He's my boy still.

The Strike at Groton Gorge.

Saturday Night.

Arctureus Allen was only eighteen when she came to Groton Gorge to take charge of the district school—a slight, dark-eyed slip of a thing, with a low voice, and such a shy, timid way that the big girls and the rebellious boys at once jumped to the conclusion that she would be conquered at once in her capacity of "school-mam."

She discovered their mistake, however, in a very brief period of time. Miss Allen might be quiet, but she had the spirit of a Joan of Arc. She reduced her little flock to order, and she kept them there, too.

Mrs. Bins, who presided over the Groton House, also bore testimony in behalf of Arctureus Allen.

"I didn't s'pose, when I first see her, that she would amount to a row of pins," said Mrs. Bins, who weighed three hundred pounds and stood five feet eight in her stockings. "A slim, little thing, with a head like a pin, and I didn't know where to go, so says I: 'If you don't mind a room over the laundry, I can clear out some of the stores and put up a cot-bed till the season is over. It's a noisy place, day times says I, with them Chinese cackling and screeching, but it's still and peaceable at nights. And if you'll help me make out the bills and keep accounts, Mr. Allen, says I, I'll con sider it in your honor.' I ain't no scholar and never was."

Mrs. Bins was an ungainly creature to look at, but she was as beautiful at heart as the Venus of Medici's self, and Arctureus soon felt herself at home in the little room over the laundry, whose windows looked out at the broad lake and the cascades and the unfathomable gloom of the fir-lands beyond. For Groton Gorge was as lovely a place as ever leavened from mountain peaks, and the Groton House was full of city boarders.

For was the domestic staff contemptible. Mrs. Bins had all her servants from the city during the summer season, and to all appearances everything was perfect.

But one day, August morning, Mrs. Bins awakened to find herself racked in every joint by acute rheumatism, and utterly incapable of doing anything. She sent for Mrs. Mackenzie, the cook, to give the day's orders; but Mrs. Mackenzie did not wait to hear about the sickening chickens and joints of spring lamb before she began on her own account.

"Sorry to inconvenience you, ma'am," said Mrs. Mackenzie, with her arms akimbo; "but we ladies and gentlemen down stairs have concluded to ask for an increase of salary. And until you have conceded to our demands, we shall be impelled to resist work."

Mrs. Bins opened her eyes wide. "Ain't I payin' you good wages, ma'am?" said Mrs. Mackenzie, with a defiant air. "And I can afford to pay no more—not a cent."

Mrs. Mackenzie took a roll of paper out of her apron and opened it. "I have been thinking, ma'am," said she, pursing up her thin lips, "the 'signatures' of all the ladies and gents at present assistin' in the mediterranean rescue down stairs, includin' the four waiters of the colored gender, and the two wash-laudries; and we won't none of us agree to stay another hour without you'll agree in accompanyin' within, ma'am, to rise our salaries."

And Mrs. Mackenzie tossed her head in epistolical satisfaction.

Mrs. Bins, struck back by her perillous, "Can't give no answer," she said, "not with this pain in my bones. Send Miss Arctureus Allen to me, please."

"Oh, certainly, ma'am," said the cook, rising. "Sorry you feel so poorly. But you'll bear in mind, ma'am, that we shall expect an answer immediately."

And Mrs. Mackenzie withdrew.

Presently Arctureus Allen came in from the top floor in the extreme rear. The furnishing of the rooms is marked by expensive elegance, but as would be expected it is without obtrusive display. Upon the wall in the outer office is a steel engraving of John Adams and a mounted and framed photograph of Charles Francis Adams, Sr. The latter is somewhat in the nature of a reception-room, where callers have to wait their turn for a talk with Mr. Adams in person.

As it is shielded himself to the utmost against intrusion Mr. Adams has chosen his own room so that the visitor has to pass through not only the reception room, but the middle office, a striking feature of the second office is the half-open, heavy door of a capacious fire-proof vault at one side. Mr. Adams is a cheerful and comfortable room when once it is reached. It has plenty of light and sunshine, too, for, being in the rear of a building that faces to the north, it gets a southern exposure.

Phil. Armour's Charity.

Not long ago a Chicago clergyman called on Phil Armour in behalf of a young woman whom he had found destitute, with an infant of a few days to care for. Armour gave the clergyman a sum of money and did not think of the matter until a few hours later when the clergyman returned, handing him the money, told him the child had been born out of wedlock and therefore the young woman was not the wife of any man.

A POWDER-MINE HERO.

How a Soldier Risked His Life in Relighting the Fuse On the Very Edge of the Mine at Petersburg.

Sometimes bravery is an impulse; sometimes it develops slowly and at a crisis brings out the metal and proves itself. The hero of the mine at the Petersburg siege was a simple-hearted man, too modest to seek the post of honor and danger, but in the course of his simple duties he walked coolly into the jaws of death.

When the civil war alarm burst upon the country, in 1861, the miners of the upper Schuylkill region, in the mountains of Pennsylvania, made up a regiment, the Forty-eighth Pennsylvania Reserve.

In the ranks of Company K, Major Reese, who was a man without pretension, but filled with that quiet ardor that does not flash and fade. The Forty-eighth served in the early battle of Virginia and in the Southwest, in Mississippi and Tennessee, and when the siege of Petersburg began, the ranks of its thousands stalwart miners had been thinned out by bullets and the hardships of camp and march to a couple of hundred men, who were though bronzed and soldierly-looking, were not the men of 1861, for fever and privation make waste with the strongest blood.

Reese was yet but a common soldier, although he had won the chevrons of a sergeant, one rank below that of a captain. He had brought the army to the trenches before Petersburg that summer the little bands of the Forty-eighth, numbering about twenty men each, were placed on the front line, opposite the most important fort the Confederates had for the protection of the line. It had cost them fifteen thousand men to dig a trench near that fort, and it could be destroyed it was believed that we could march into Petersburg.

He had been ordered to carry the position by regular assault, and at the rate we were losing men we could throw them all away and make no progress. These miners, who were not in their work, and one day, or night, rather, a sort of neighborhood council was held in the camp of the Forty-eighth, and some one proposed to destroy the stubborn stronghold that blocked the way by dynamite.

It was a bold project, and it was not without its dangers. The men were not used to the use of dynamite, and it was not without its dangers. The men were not used to the use of dynamite, and it was not without its dangers.

Mrs. Ridley, who had been a housekeeper in a grand Pennsylvania mansion, and who had volunteered as cook, with the assistance of Marian Sevier, the rector's daughter, who had spent a winter in New York and taken lessons of Mrs. Parloa.

"It will be such fun," said pretty Marian, dancing up and down. "And Mrs. Parloa, and Mrs. Sevier, and I'll con sider it in your honor." I ain't no scholar and never was."

Mrs. Bins was an ungainly creature to look at, but she was as beautiful at heart as the Venus of Medici's self, and Arctureus soon felt herself at home in the little room over the laundry, whose windows looked out at the broad lake and the cascades and the unfathomable gloom of the fir-lands beyond. For Groton Gorge was as lovely a place as ever leavened from mountain peaks, and the Groton House was full of city boarders.

For was the domestic staff contemptible. Mrs. Bins had all her servants from the city during the summer season, and to all appearances everything was perfect.

But one day, August morning, Mrs. Bins awakened to find herself racked in every joint by acute rheumatism, and utterly incapable of doing anything. She sent for Mrs. Mackenzie, the cook, to give the day's orders; but Mrs. Mackenzie did not wait to hear about the sickening chickens and joints of spring lamb before she began on her own account.

"Sorry to inconvenience you, ma'am," said Mrs. Mackenzie, with her arms akimbo; "but we ladies and gentlemen down stairs have concluded to ask for an increase of salary. And until you have conceded to our demands, we shall be impelled to resist work."

Mrs. Bins opened her eyes wide. "Ain't I payin' you good wages, ma'am?" said Mrs. Mackenzie, with a defiant air. "And I can afford to pay no more—not a cent."

Mrs. Mackenzie took a roll of paper out of her apron and opened it. "I have been thinking, ma'am," said she, pursing up her thin lips, "the 'signatures' of all the ladies and gents at present assistin' in the mediterranean rescue down stairs, includin' the four waiters of the colored gender, and the two wash-laudries; and we won't none of us agree to stay another hour without you'll agree in accompanyin' within, ma'am, to rise our salaries."

And Mrs. Mackenzie tossed her head in epistolical satisfaction.

Mrs. Bins, struck back by her perillous, "Can't give no answer," she said, "not with this pain in my bones. Send Miss Arctureus Allen to me, please."

"Oh, certainly, ma'am," said the cook, rising. "Sorry you feel so poorly. But you'll bear in mind, ma'am, that we shall expect an answer immediately."

And Mrs. Mackenzie withdrew.

Presently Arctureus Allen came in from the top floor in the extreme rear. The furnishing of the rooms is marked by expensive elegance, but as would be expected it is without obtrusive display. Upon the wall in the outer office is a steel engraving of John Adams and a mounted and framed photograph of Charles Francis Adams, Sr. The latter is somewhat in the nature of a reception-room, where callers have to wait their turn for a talk with Mr. Adams in person.

As it is shielded himself to the utmost against intrusion Mr. Adams has chosen his own room so that the visitor has to pass through not only the reception room, but the middle office, a striking feature of the second office is the half-open, heavy door of a capacious fire-proof vault at one side. Mr. Adams is a cheerful and comfortable room when once it is reached. It has plenty of light and sunshine, too, for, being in the rear of a building that faces to the north, it gets a southern exposure.

Phil. Armour's Charity.

Not long ago a Chicago clergyman called on Phil Armour in behalf of a young woman whom he had found destitute, with an infant of a few days to care for. Armour gave the clergyman a sum of money and did not think of the matter until a few hours later when the clergyman returned, handing him the money, told him the child had been born out of wedlock and therefore the young woman was not the wife of any man.

How a Soldier Risked His Life in Relighting the Fuse On the Very Edge of the Mine at Petersburg.

Sometimes bravery is an impulse; sometimes it develops slowly and at a crisis brings out the metal and proves itself. The hero of the mine at the Petersburg siege was a simple-hearted man, too modest to seek the post of honor and danger, but in the course of his simple duties he walked coolly into the jaws of death.
